

Elizabethtown College Headline News

Dear Elizabethtown College Community:

At Elizabethtown College, the overall safety and wellbeing of our campus community is our top priority. As we have been sharing, the College's Emergency Management Group (EMG) is closely monitoring the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the Pennsylvania Department of Health guidelines regarding the Novel COVID-19 (or coronavirus), and have taken preventative measures both on and off our campus in a proactive effort to protect our community.

At this time there are no reported cases of coronavirus at Elizabethtown College, and as of March 11 (9 a.m.), there are no reported cases in Lancaster County.

Elizabethtown College will continue to work closely with our medical partners and provide updates to the campus community. We recognize other area colleges and universities have announced alternative learning options. At this time, EMG is assessing our plan and if changes are made to the format of our classes and/or activities, we will share those updates with our campus community immediately.

College updates also will be shared on our website which we encourage you to check daily. Thank you for your support of E-town.
